The Honorable Kirstjen M. Nielsen
Secretary
U.S. Department of Homeland Security
245 Murray Lane SW
Washington, D.C. 20528

Dear Secretary Nielsen:

We are writing to denounce the deportation of the Vietnamese people who are subject to the 2008 U.S.-Vietnam repatriation agreement.

In 2008, under President George W. Bush, the U.S. and Vietnam executed an agreement to govern the repatriation of certain Vietnamese immigrants with final orders of removal to Vietnam. The agreement expressly states that Vietnamese citizens are not subject to repatriation to Vietnam if they arrived in the U.S. before 1995. Nevertheless, the Trump Administration has unilaterally reinterpreted the agreement between the U.S. and Vietnam to pursue deportation for certain Vietnamese immigrants who arrived in the U.S. before 1995.

Many pre-1995 arrivals are refugees from the Vietnam War. Some are the children of those who once allied with American and South Vietnamese forces, rendering them undesirable to the current regime in Hanoi, which imputes anti-regime beliefs to the children of those who opposed North Vietnam. This anti-Communist constituency includes minorities such as the children of the American-allied Montagnards, who are persecuted in Vietnam for both their ethnicity and Christian religion.

In most cases, the Vietnamese individuals here in the U.S. have little to return to in Vietnam. The risk of deportation of certain Vietnamese individuals has stoked fear among Vietnamese communities. Therefore, Los Angeles County opposes the practice of deporting Vietnamese immigrants due to the reinterpretation of the repatriation agreement.

In 2008, under President George W. Bush, the U.S. and Vietnam executed an agreement to govern the repatriation of certain Vietnamese immigrants with final orders of removal to Vietnam. The agreement expressly states that Vietnamese citizens are not subject to repatriation to Vietnam if they arrived in the U.S. before 1995. Nevertheless, the Trump Administration has unilaterally reinterpreted the agreement between the U.S. and Vietnam to pursue deportation for certain Vietnamese immigrants who arrived in the U.S. before 1995.

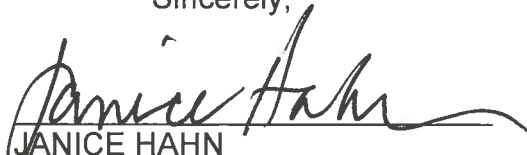

Many pre-1995 arrivals are refugees from the Vietnam War. Some are the children of those who once allied with American and South Vietnamese forces, rendering them undesirable to the current regime in Hanoi, which imputes anti-regime beliefs to the children of those who opposed North Vietnam. This anti-Communist constituency includes minorities such as the children of the American-allied Montagnards, who are persecuted in Vietnam for both their ethnicity and Christian religion.

In most cases, the Vietnamese individuals here in the U.S. have little to return to in Vietnam. The risk of deportation of certain Vietnamese individuals has stoked fear among Vietnamese communities. Therefore, Los Angeles County opposes the practice of deporting Vietnamese immigrants due to the reinterpretation of the repatriation agreement.
